New Board Member

My name is Dawn Sammons and I am humbled to serve as a new council member for Walworth County Art Council. I love to travel, sew, and spend time with our dog. I am a lifelong resident of Walworth County as well as a retired school teacher from Fontana Elementary. I earned my undergraduate and master degrees both in education at UW Whitewater. The arts have been a very important part of my family's life and my husband and I continue to explore more in our retirement years. We loved watching and supporting our children growing up very involved in various aspects of the arts including dance, music, and visual arts. Their appreciation and ongoing involvement in the arts as adults continues to enhance their lives. I look forward to supporting this foundation which helped my own children explore and discover new parts of themselves.

If you're interested in joining the WCAC board, please email Jennifer Vaun Coil, Administrative Director, with any questions at walworthcountyarts@gmail.com, or call board member Libby Palmer (262) 949-3651.

Special Thank Yous

Dear Friends of Walworth County
Arts Council,

Enclosed is a check which should go towards my membership and all the marvelous work you do for the community.

Thank you kindly

Dear Walworth County Arts Council,
I want to sincerely thank you for awarding me the art scholarship. I am truly honored and grateful for your support, which will help me continue pursuing my passion for the arts and further my education. Your generosity and encouragement mean a great deal to me, and I'm excited to carry this recognition with me as I grow as an artist.

Warm regards, Jonny Klug

WCAC 2025 Visual Arts Scholarship Winner

2025 County Fair Winner

Martha Hayden from Sharon Wisconsin received the WCAC's award for use of color at the Walworth County Fair's plein air event. Artists are invited to paint at the fair on the Thursday of the fair. Their paintings are on display in the Arts and Crafts building from Friday til the end of the fair.

The following is a statement by Martha about her work. "Late last year, I broke my glasses while I was traveling. I had difficulty for rest of the trip. I thought my worsening vision on that trip was related to my lack of glasses. When I returned home, I went to my ophthalmologist. I learned I had retinal detachment.

In the past, my art has been predicated in getting behind the edge. When you put down a stroke of paint, whether thick or thin, it always has two edges. I do not see edges anymore. I can see movement, color and shape, I can see the periphery. I cannot see edges well.

I went to an Eye Institute in Milwaukee for a second opinion. My doctor there was very patient. He listened well. He told me to paint what you can see. It took some time, but when I finally decided to take his advice, I started looking for ways to diffuse the edges—to paint what I could see. I cannot be too exact. My work today is a study of how to diffuse edges, to paint amorphous objects and to paint the porous world that I see."

Meet a Local Artist

Treska Marton

About The Artist...

I was born in Budapest, Hungary to a wealthy entrepreneurial family that passionately supported the fine arts. After the second World War, everything was taken from my family by the communists and consequently, my family suffered great hardship.

As a young woman, I was afforded the opportunity to professionally train at the prestigious Budapest Képzomuvészeti School where I began my formative years in the study of painting and the unique art of cut glass.

In 1956, during the Hungarian Revolution, I escaped communism and I emigrated from Hungary to Canada where I continued to study advertising art and calligraphy. During this time I painted and sold oil paintings for an art gallery just outside of Montreal.

Later, in 1971, I immigrated to the United States. While raising a family, I worked as a designer and instructor in Cortland, Illinois and as a floral designer at Safeway Floral and Marshall Field's. I also had a passion for jewelry and theme design and horticultural studies just outside of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania where I taught floral design at Bucks County College.

After a considerable hiatus, I began to paint again, moving closer to my family in Wisconsin where I now live. Today, my art reflects my love of nature and floral design which I weave into every detail of my work. I sense the beauty of nature through the vivid colors and the elegant movement of air, water, and light in every piece I design. My personal name is Tréska which was fondly given to me by my dear grandma when I was just a toddler.
